Mr. Desrochers

CHANCELLOR TO RECEIVE HONORARY DEGREE

LOUIS A. DESROCHERS, Chancellor of The University of Alberta, will receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree at the fall convocation ceremonies at the University of Ottawa.

Mr. Desrochers attended the Jesuit College in Edmonton and Collège Saint-Jean before obtaining his Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Ottawa in 1949. He received his Bachelor of Laws degree at The University of Alberta in 1952.

As a leader of Alberta's French-Canadian community, he was instrumental in working out the integration of Collège Saint-Jean, formerly affiliated with the University of Ottawa, into The University of Alberta. He served as Treasurer, Vice-President, and then President of the French Canadian Association of Alberta during his membership from 1956 to 1962.

Mr. Desrochers also has been active in several civic and charitable organizations in Edmonton, and he has been a member of the Canada Council since 1968.

INDIANS DISCUSS EDUCATION PROBLEMS

"Just circle the Indians" was the message Tuesday night when more than 1,500 people squeezed into the Students' Union Theatre to attend a forum on "Native Education."

The forum, sponsored by the Students' Union, was intended to bring the Indian problems—and culture—before the University community.

Members of the forum panel were CHIEF DAN GEORGE of the Burrard Reserve in North Vancouver; MISS KAHN TINETA HORN, Canadian Director of the Indian Legal Defence Committee; and HAROLD CARDINAL, Director of the Indian Association of Alberta.

At a press conference prior to the forum, and at the presentation, the three Indian representatives discussed the problems that Indians living on reserves face when trying to obtain an education.

"In northeastern Alberta, Indian students were bused to white schools," said Miss Horn. "There were problems, and they evolved into a demand for an all-Indian school on the reserve.

"The students themselves have called meetings in the towns to make their parents, who never went to integrated schools, aware of the problems they are encountering. The students are unhappy because they can not identify with what they are being taught."

Mr. Cardinal said he favors a dual integration policy in which Indian parents may send their children to white schools, and white parents may send their children to Indian schools.

"Local people must get together and discuss how their resources can best be used for the education of their children," he said. "What we want is the right of the parents to control their children's educations."

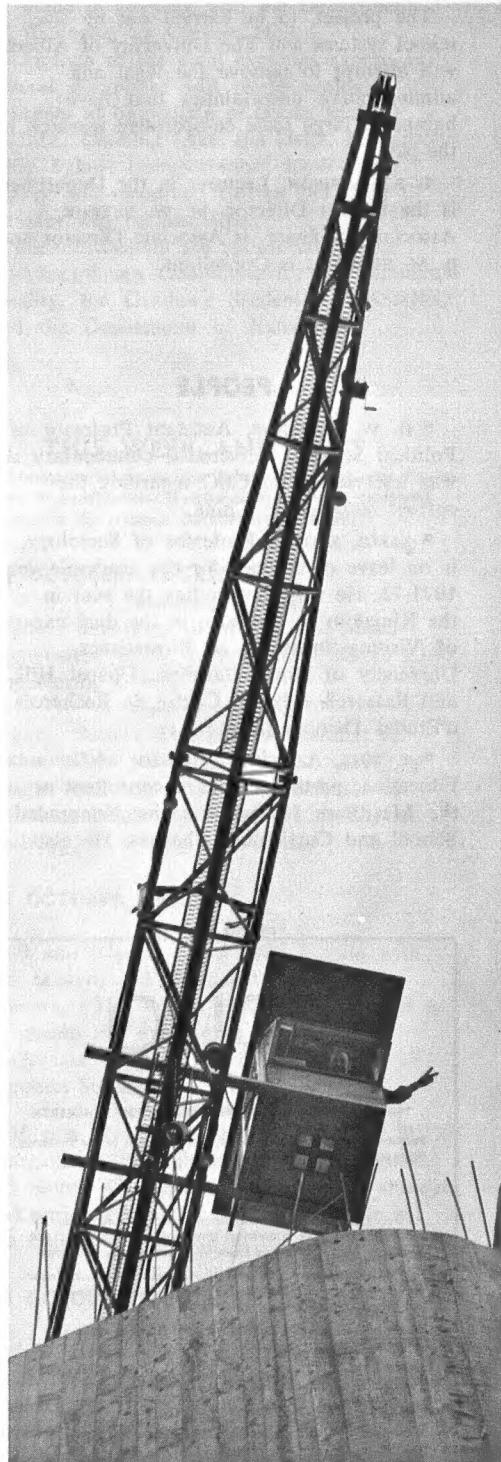

In offering solutions to the problems, Miss Horn and Mr. Cardinal proposed that emphasis be placed on designing a curriculum that is relevant to the Indian.

"We are basically outdoors people," said Miss Horn, "so we must develop among the young Indian men a wide variety of skills related to the outdoors. We must make the Indian student feel that what he is learning from books will be of value to his life."

She said Indians who have a strong background in their culture (and, thus, a strong sense of loyalty to it) should be trained in law, medicine, or some other profession that could be used to help the Indian people.

"The Indians must become self-sufficient, so some sort of education is necessary," she said. "But that education must not damage or destroy the Indian way of life."

Who has not envied the crane operator, that all-seeing monarch of a little piece of sky, secure in his plastic bubble, watching the scurrying and laboring, the errors and the wanderings, and especially the miniskirts, on the campus below.

CO-OPERATIVE PROJECT FOR INDUSTRIAL ARTS

J. E. GALLAGHER, Chairman of the Department of Industrial and Vocational Education at the University, has been appointed to the Executive Board of a research project designed to increase the cost-effectiveness of Industrial Arts programs.

The project, to be carried out by five school systems and The University of Alberta, will attempt to remove the legal and administrative uncertainties that have hampered large scale co-operative research in the past.

T. E. HARRISON, Lecturer in the Department, is the Project Director. M. W. PETRUK, Associate Professor, is Associate Director and D. M. RICHARDS is Consultant.

NOTICES

DRAMA SUBSCRIPTIONS

Season ticket subscriptions may now be obtained for the 21st season of Studio Theatre. Four major productions are planned. The Ecstasy of Rita Joe by GEORGE RIGA will be performed from October 21 to the 30; The Ticket of Leave Man by TOM TAYLOR from December 9 to 18; Ah Wilderness by EUGENE O'NEILL from February 10 to 19 and a play yet to be selected will be performed between March 23 and April 1.

A registration fee of $5 at the beginning of the season entitles each subscriber to two free tickets for each performance. Announcements of the plays will be sent out well in advance. The subscriber merely has to indicate choice of performance and send back the advance notice with a stamped addressed envelope. Tickets will then be received in the mail.

For application forms or further information call The Department of Drama, 439-7308.

PHYSICAL FITNESS TESTING CENTRE

The Faculty of Physical Education has announced that the Physical Fitness Testing Center will be open to students, staff, and the general public again this year. The center is located in the east wing of the Physical Education and Recreation Center, fourth floor, room E-412. It is open every Tuesday and Thursday evening from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The primary purpose of the center is to inform individuals about their present level of physical fitness and offer suggestions for personal improvement. Anyone desirous of knowing his/her level of physical fitness can make an appointment (telephone 432-5601) and undergo a battery of tests designed to determine cardiovascular fitness, general body strength, and amount of body fat. The data thus obtained will be analyzed and suggestions made to the individual for personal improvement. A nominal fee of $1 (50 cents for students) is charged for this service. Gymnasium costume should be worn. Medical certificates are required from registered physicians before testing can be authorized.

Further information may be obtained from M. SINGH, Faculty of Physical Education, telephone 432-3612.

ENVIRONMENTAL PROBLEMS

An information and open discussion series on the problems of our environment will be held each Tuesday evening for eight weeks starting October 19, at 7:30 p.m., at Garneau United Church—Barricade Coffee House on 84 Avenue east of 112 Street.

The series fee is $2 and registration should be made in advance with the Department of Extension at Corbett Hall.

On each of the eight evenings experts in several disciplines will relate ecological concepts to immediate problems such as PRIME: Cooking Lake; the Delta; Edmonton's noise bylaw; transportation; fossil fuels, energy and resources. Coffee and food services will be available.

The discussions are sponsored by the Interdisciplinary Committee for Environmental Quality, the Graduate Students' Association, and the Department of Extension.
